~Biography~

Thank you for visiting my website. I've been writing since the '80s, but I've just become serious about it in the last two years.

One of the primary goals of my writing is to give readers a world into which they can escape the stress of life. And a fun read for lounging on the beach or cuddling up with a blanket and a cup of tea.
~Smart Women ~Sexy Men ~Seductive Romance.

I write a sensual romance with a touch of mystery. I am in a truly wonderful, loving, long-term relationship, and I share my domestic happiness through my characters, who emotionally commit to each other before they begin a physical connection. My goal is to let readers know that love, in monogamous relationships, can be fun and spicy!

Another goal is to make a difference in the world. That is why each of my books will sponsor a community program, and a percentage of my proceeds will be donated to that organization.

In Las Vegas, I'm giving to The Shade Tree Shelter, a shelter for women, children and their pets.

In Los Angeles, I'm giving to an organization offering art and culture programs to inner-city youth.
In Miami, I'm donating to a charity that benefits Cuban-American youth and families.

I live in Saint Paul, Minnesota with my family, and although I work a full-time job as a financial analyst for a professional sports team, I write every evening and weekend.

I hope to be a full-time writer one day soon, and I take classes in every aspect of writing, marketing and publishing. I'm a member of Romance Writers of America, Midwest Fiction Writers, Wisconsin Romance Writers of America, and Elements of RWA.
